Inspire, Influence, Motivate

As a leader, present the best version of yourself. Build your personal leadership skills by using the three attributes to provide leadership that will make a positive impact on others.

Inspire team members and classmates by setting an example, sharing success, rewarding others accomplishments, appealing to a common purpose, recognizing what others care about and what difference they hope to make. Demonstrate meaning and value in the work that is to be completed.

“Catch them doing something right!”

Influence team members and classmates to change a thought or action to produce the desired result that will have a positive impact on others. Create a clear vision of the expected outcomes in the classroom, for the entire school, and within the community.

“If you don’t know where you are going, you won’t know when you get there!”

Motivate team members and classmates by realizing the satisfaction that comes from meaningful, interesting, enjoyable or challenging work. Belonging to a group, gaining a sense of achievement, or making a difference in some way meets individual needs and interests.
